ROAD RAGE

Good Morning teachers and my fellow students. Today I'm here to talk about road rage and how to deal with it.

Road rage is the immediate response of anger or frustration by drivers which is caused due to driving or other incidents on the road. India has the highest rate of road rage in the world. The likelihood of road rage depends upon the stress handling ability of the driver. Cutting in and out of traffic, lack of parking space, rude gestures, lane changes are the leading causes of road rage. In India, other main factors contributing to road rage are terrible weather conditions, poor driving habits, mismanagement of traffic, bad road conditions, time constraints and increased noise level. People in modern times are stressed about a lot of things in their personal lives, this leads to low tolerance among them and they are quick to engage in road rage. Road rage incidents may lead to traffic delays, physical altercation, running late to a meeting or appointment, making drivers further impatient and totally disregard traffic rules.

We should focus on dealing with road rage incidents calmly. Few things that we can do on our end are : leaving on time as rushing makes one feel anxious and increases the risk of road rage, staying calm by playing good music, keeping safe distance from the other vehicles to avoid collision. If one finds themselves embroiled in a road rage incident, one should try not to further escalate the situation and quickly disperse the anger.

Road rage incident can easily be avoided if we drive carefully and handle the situation maturely.

Thank you

UNITY IN DIVERSITY

Good Morning teachers and my fellow students. Today on the occasion of Republic day, I'm here before you to share my views on Unity in Diversity.

India is considered to be 5000 years-old civilisation, with almost 1.7 billion people currently calling it their home. There are 28 states and 8 union territories in India. In these different states people speak different languages and they have different cultures. People also practice different religions. Despite all these differences, there exists a remarkable sense of unity amongst its people. This is why India is the perfect example of unity in diversity.

India has a large population which shares different thoughts and ideologies. The freedom struggle for independence is the perfect example to highlight the unity in diversity in India. The freedom struggle saw people from different religions, beliefs and castes coming together and fighting for independence under the name of one country. People of India practice various religions such as Hinduism, Islam, Christianity, Buddhism, Sikhism, Jainism, Judaism and Zoroastrianism (Parsees). And they celebrate different religious festivals like Holi, Christmas, Diwali, Good Friday, Eid-ul-Fitr, Ganesh Chaturthi, etc. Each religious community gets equal opportunity to celebrate their festivals.

Hindi is the national language, but people of India speak diverse languages like, English, Sanskrit, Punjabi, Marathi, Malayalam, Tamil, Bengali, Bodo, and so on. In spite of all these differences, everyone lives in India with a strong love for the nation. During sports events, we all participate as a team, there is no discrimination against one another on the basis of religion, culture or language. Cricket is one such sport which is enjoyed by everyone in the country regardless of their differences.

India's unity in its diversity has grown stronger through the years and it continues to be a beacon of light for unity around the world.

Thank You.

Debate Writing

1. I support the motion that beauty pageants are outdated and should be eradicated. Beauty pageants endorse an ideal of female beauty to which only a very few women can realistically aspire, but it adds to the pressure on all women to conform to it. Women in beauty pageants are judged largely on their physical appearance, rather than on any other qualities they might possess. Though these pageants try to emphasize on the fact that it is not about physical beauty alone but also about one's personality, the truth remains that most beauty pageants have a minimum height and weight requirement as their criteria for participation. The educational background, future aspirations, hobbies and interest make up one's personality, which are not emphasised in these pageants.
Beauty pageants promote consumerism. It is a billion dollar industry participants promote various products related to beauty industry which influences the women who watch these pageants. They form an impression that these products will help them achieve the standards of beauty these pageants promote. As beauty pageants have gained popularity, they have expanded to young participants with preteen and teen beauty pageants. Children of such young age are unable to cope-up with the rigorous preparation schedule and gruelling competitions. These children often succumb to stress and depression and various health problems. Miss Teen Universe 2017 died at the age of 19 from a heart attack, which is assumed to be a result of stress. Thus, beauty pageants are outdated and should not be seen as the standard of beauty in the society. They should be eradicated.

  2. I am against the motion that religion is not needed in today's world of science and technology. Material science is the investigation of the natural phenomenon while spiritual science is the discovery or realisation of spiritual realities, which includes the discovery of the mysteries of God; the inner significance of heavenly religions and foundation of law. Science and religion are complementary to each other. But, with the advancement of science and technology, their use as a weapon to harm human life and exert power has added to their inconvenience. The usage of nuclear bombs hydrogen bombs and other lethal weapons, were started when enraged international political forces commanded science during World war I and II. Many innocent lives were sacrificed due to such scientific application, and people had nowhere to turn to peace but to their Gods. This is the core use of religion, to give people hope in time of crisis.
People have turned to religion when they feel hopeless in life due to any circumstance. Science seems futile in such moments. Science and religion can cooperate to establish a harmonious relationship that can help humankind. Scientific advancements lead to evolution and better understanding of life, while religion gives people hope and pushes them to work harder towards their goals.
